

HSRA Awards 2023

Established Researcher Award:

These awards are limited for researchers at the full professor level in basic science, clinical science, population health, and health professions education.

Established researcher nominees are expected to have made major contributions to their field and have established an important research program. In addition, to qualify for this award, the nominee must have contributed significantly to the research environment through mentoring, scientific leadership, collaboration, and service to the University and the scientific community.

Criteria:

- Significance of contribution(s) to the field
- Originality of the work
- Value of the work in shaping and furthering the field
- Productivity & collaboration
- National and international recognition
- Contributions to the research environment of the University
- Contributions as a mentor and colleague
- Those who received the award in last three years are not eligible to apply.

Nomination Requirements:

- Share the details in the google form